Presidential Inaugurations

In March, 1916, two presidents were formally inaugurated as the chief executives of Washington's two highest institutions of education. On March 20-21 Henry Suzzallo was publicly greeted and felicitated on assuming full control of his high office in the University of Washington. On March 23-24 Ernest O. Holland was the center of similar ceremonies at the Washington State College. There were many prominent educators and distinguished citizens present as delegates and participants in the interesting programmes. Chief among these was Nicholas Murray Butler, publicist and President of the Columbia University. The appropriateness of his presence was manifest as both the new presidents hailed from the great institution of which he is the distinguished head.

Aside from the importance of the events themselves, lovers of history are interested since the two men thus honored have it within their power to materially advance and encourage the cause of historical research in this relatively new commonwealth.

A Correction

A line of type was accidentally omitted from the article by M. Orion Monroe on "A Critical Discussion of the Site of Camp Washington." On page 20 of this Quarterly for January, 1916, the second sentence of the fifth paragraph should have read: "It has been proved beyond reasonable doubt that the true site of Camp Washington was located at a point twelve and one-half miles southwest from the ruins of the Spokane House and six miles south of the winding ford on the Spokane river," etc. The italics indicate the line lost in the proof reading.

Pioneer and Historical Society of Thurston County

At the annual meeting of this organization at Olympia on March 2, 1916, General Hazard Stevens was re-elected president. Allen Weir, who had rendered years of faithful service as secretary, felt impelled by reason of failing strength to retire from that office. This decision was reluctantly accepted by the members who placed the duties upon F. W. Stocking, treasurer of the society. The other officers were all re-elected, including the venerable chaplain, P. D. Moore, hail and hearty in his ninety-first year.

The summer meeting of the society will be held in Tumwater Park, when the monument to the first American settlement on Puget Sound will be officially unveiled.

Living Pioneers of Washington

In this Quarterly for January, 1916, pages 87-89, there was published a list of biographical sketches of living pioneers of the Pacific Northwest and especially of Washington. This series of articles, written by the editor of this Quarterly, appeared on the editorial page of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer. For the benefit of future historians, the list of the articles as they appeared in that newspaper since December 31, 1915, is here published with the date of first publication, the year being 1916, and with the present address of the pioneers:

- January 1, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram H. Pease, Seattle.
- January 3, Cyrus Hamlin Walker, Albany, Or.
- January 4, Dr. A. W. Thornton, Ferndale, Wash.
- January 5, Prof. W. D. Lyman, Walla Walla, Wash.
- January 6, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Chilberg, Seattle.
- January 7, Charles E. Ivy, Davenport, Wash.
- January 8, Marion Phillips, Seattle.
- January 10, Ira Robinson, Ferndale, Wash.
